BILLBOARD REGGAE DEBUT

BROOKLYN to TRINIDAD + TOBAGO

Pop. Reggae. Hip-hop. Jazz. The sound of two homes became a language all her own.

THE MAKING OF A GENRE-FLUID ARTIST

Angela Hunte grew up surrounded by musical contrast: Brooklyn urgency and Caribbean pulse; international pop and deeply rooted rhythm. That breadth became the foundation of her versatile songwriting and an artistic identity that refuses traditional genre labels.

She first earned international acclaim behind the scenes, writing songs for some of music's most recognizable voices. Her Grammy-winning work on "Empire State of Mind" helped define a modern New York anthem while proving her gift for writing on a truly global scale.

In 2015, Angela stepped into the spotlight alongside Soca star Machel Montano on "Party Done." Her solo hit "Mon Bon Ami" followed, revealing the performer behind the pen and a charismatic voice ready to stand at center stage.

Her debut album R.A.W. topped the Billboard reggae chart. MANGO expanded the palette with emotional depth, expansive production and collaborations spanning continents. The throughline is unmistakable: authenticity, movement and connection.

"She wrote the soundtrack to a city - then stepped into the light on her own terms."

THE PEN BEHIND THE MOMENT.

Angela's songwriting moves naturally across genres, cultures and eras - creating records with emotional clarity, melodic instinct and undeniable reach.

R.A.W.

The chart-topping debut.

Angela's first solo album arrived as a fearless declaration: eight songs shaped by Caribbean roots, global pop instinct and the confidence of an artist stepping fully into her own voice.

2017 | 8 SONGS | 25 MINUTES

RAW ENERGY.

R.A.W. topped the Billboard reggae chart and established Angela as a recording artist with a distinct voice - candid, kinetic and impossible to place inside a single box.
